REGATTA AND RACE MEETING

Leduc Celebration Was a Splendid Success

August 20th had long been billed for the Leduc regatta and race meeting. The sun shone down in all its strength and ideal weather greeted the good people of Leduc in their annual celebration. Nothing more could have been desired, a bright sun and a cloudless sky, and a fresh invigorating breeze blowing from Leduc's lake. It was an ideal spot for a celebration and it is no wonder that it was such a decided success.

Leduc itself, was fitted out in holiday attire. Flags were flying, the stores were gay with bunting, trees were placed along both sides of all the main streets and everything done to add to the pleasure of the day. Crowds of people gathered in the town and hundreds more would have present had the day been less fine. At this season of the year a farmer objects to missing a single day from his haying operations. However, the crowd who turned out gave themselves fully to the enjoyments of the day. All thoughts of work were dismissed and a spirit of intense mirth prevailed everywhere. The town was thrown open to the visitors and they took complete possession. A contingent of twenty-four, including the lacrosse club, were present from Edmonton, and assisted very materially in keeping the good time going.

Lacrosse Match.
The first event of the day was a lacrosse match between Leduc and Edmonton. A large crowd was present at the match and it was a splendid exhibition of good, fast lacrosse. Canada's national game was played as should be played. Leduc had a team of which they may well be proud. The game ended without a score being made, partly owing to excellent goal keeping, and at other times unfortunate shooting. After seven minutes playing in the second half, Leduc scored a goal. Although several attempts were made by both teams, no further score could be made. An interesting feature of the game was the desire exhibited by several Leduc young ladies to get snap shots of the Edmonton team. The teams stood up as follows:—

After the match was over, the Edmontonians, the guests of the Leduc lacrosse club, as for the time the Wetaskiwin band arrived on the scene, and enjoyed the proceedings with great interest. The Wetaskiwin band and boys are all right and know the class of music a band, crowd enjoys. Besides playing excellent music they were very liberal with it.

Football Match.
Early in the afternoon a football match took place between Miller and Conjuring Creek, which resulted in a tie. The game was exceedingly lively and well contested. The line up of the teams was:—

Bulletin Correspondence.

The debate on the Grand Trunk Pacific bill was continued during the three sittings of yesterday and will be kept up until a vote is reached.

Mr. Charlton, who commenced his reply to Mr. Blair on Tuesday evening, occupied the evening sitting and a part of the afternoon. He has the reputation of being an effective parliamentary debater, and took strong grounds in favor of the terms of the bargain. His reply, however, to Mr. Blair was rather an attempt at aspersions of that gentleman's motives than an effective criticism of the very pronounced views which he had expressed. Mr. Charlton had been an advocate of government ownership and was, therefore, at something of a disadvantage in his attack upon Mr. Blair. The strongest part of his speech was the comparison which he made between the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk. The difference, brought out by Mr. Charlton, was startling and suspending and entirely in favor of that made with the Grand Trunk Pacific.

F. D. Monck, French leader of the opposition, followed Mr. Charlton, but could not think more than echo parts of Mr. Blair's speech. He did not attempt to state what the policy of the opposition was, even if it had one. The nearest he came to it was to say that in his belief the government should not be allowed to have left it to be built entirely by private enterprise. However, he seemed rather to favor the improvement of the lake and ocean ports, particularly that of Montreal, and the building of the Canadian Bay Canal.

Now Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, followed, and made the government's strongest presentation of the case. His speech evinced careful preparation, which showed that Mr. Blair's position put up only to fill in the time when Mr. Fielding prepared himself to dispense the arguments and discredit the position of Mr. Blair. His speech, however, was rather a calm, clear, and conclusive presentation of the strong features of the government's case, and was singularly free from anything of a personal nature. It was rather evidence by facts and figures supporting the general statements of the premier in this regard, than which Mr. Blair had spent considerably research and thrown a large measure of doubt. The bonding privilege, the shortening of the route to Maritime provinces ports, the value of Northern Ontario and Quebec, the value of the running account other companies, the cost of the agreement as to carriage of freight to Canadian ports, and the actual cost of the undertaking by the government were dealt with in a clear and masterly fashion by the Finance Minister, who, as Mr. Blair said, than words that the question at issue rested upon its merits rather than upon any matter of personal or party prestige. Mr. Blair had calculated on a shortening of the route from Quebec to Moncton by from 63 to 77 miles. Mr. Fielding made it about 90. Mr. Blair had placed the cost at fifteen millions. Mr. Fielding placed it at ten millions. Mr. Blair had placed the cost of the Canadian Pacific's steamship at $35,000 a mile. Mr. Fielding placed it at $28,000 for 1,675 miles. The total cost from Moncton to Winnipeg, including interest during construction, would amount to fifty-four millions. On this amount there would have to be paid for seven years, and a sum of less than nine millions now set aside would pay the total interest on that amount for the seven years. The Quebec section would figure at 400 miles costing $30,000 a mile, or $14,500,000, on which seven years' interest at three per cent would be two and a third millions. The government would have to provide for crossing the St. Lawrence at Quebec, which probably cost two million dollars or $20,000 in interest for seven years. He made the total of the interest charges which the government would have to bear, such that the sum of $11,000,000 was appropriated from the surplus of the present year would meet the interest payments during the seven years that they would run. This calculation was made to support Sir Wilfrid's assertion that the cost of the Canadian Pacific's steamship could be paid out of the present year's surplus. Of course, this leaves out of consideration the liabilities which the government assumes, but upon which the Grand Trunk Pacific pays interest after the end of the seven years. Mr. Fielding's calculation was based on the reasonable belief that the Grand Trunk Pacific company, with the guarantee of the Grand Trunk company, will undoubtedly be able to get all its passengers, and that the only cost that the government will be called upon to pay is the amount of interest which it assumes according to the terms of the bargain.

Mr. Barker, Conservative of Hamilton, followed Mr. Fielding, but made a very mild argument which may to some extent be accounted for by the fact that the Grand Trunk railway is practically alone in Hamilton. From present indications it would appear that like considerations will probably have a very serious effect upon the attitude of the opposition towards the present scheme, now that it has entered upon the arena of politics, and that there will be very considerable defections from the opposition ranks if the question is brought to a vote.

—Mr. Jno. Giles, of Sixth street, Edmonton, left at the Bulletin office this morning a peculiar potato plant. Genuine potatoes are growing out from the stems of the plant above ground. Mr. Giles' potato crop is exceedingly heavy as many as two dozen large potatoes being taken from a single hill. How's this for Alberta? Want of space underground is compelling the potatoes to grow from high on the stems above ground.

—The Izzyhook, a weekly magazine published south of the line, says, "That region of Canada which we have under consideration is one of the healthiest in the world. The country is open, the atmosphere is cool and dry, and there is an abundance of bright sunshine. In the winter, in this part of our territory the snow never fails to more than a few inches in depth and is dry and powdery. Winter in western Assinibina and southern Alberta is a season of bright, cloudless days and sleighing is only an occasional pastime. Heavy snows have at times covered the prairie more than a foot in depth, but this is exceptional. The Edmonton neighborhood, in Alberta, seemed to the writer to combine somewhat more of the favorable conditions sought for by the homeseeker than some other sections. At least that neighborhood is filling up with the greatest rapidity. Those who would see a boom in full blaze should go to Alberta and take their stand at Edmonton. They can watch it going on all about them, and as far as the writer can see, when the matter subsides to a normal condition and a steady, healthy growth, Edmonton will be a considerable city, and its neighborhood, for some hundreds of miles, a vast, cultivated garden spot."

Dr. Harvey is the author of many valuable treatises on ophthalmology, relating to the eye and the proper correction of defects of sight. He is the inventor of the Harvey Dynamic Illuminous Retina Ophthalmoscope and the founder of the Empire College of Ophthalmology, Toronto, which has since then standardised upon knowledge to a professional basis, and whose graduates are today giving the public more satisfactory sight than previously obtained by any known method. By his recent discoveries in marked astigmatism, which were great suffering, have been restored to normal sight. The doctor will visit Edmonton Saturday, August 22nd, and Monday, the 24th, at D. W. Macdonald's drug store.

THE ADVANTAGES OF UNDER-BRAINI

Many reasons may easily be adduced to show that farm lands will, in nearly all cases, be improved by draining. By all cases, be improved by drainage is a common proportion of the soil, but it is probable that in course of time, as land becomes more valuable, it will be found advisable to artificial-ly drain the greater part of our level or moderately sloping lands that are worth the trouble. The question whether it will pay to drain a given area depends on the value of the land before draining, the cost of the operations, and the value of the land when drained. This is a question which every land owner must decide for himself.

At the outset it may be pointed out that drainage lessens the soil, and so affords greater room for the roots of plants. Unless its roots have an extensive pasture, as we were, no plant can make use of the resources of the soil to the best advantage. In well-drained soils the roots of most cultivated crops spread themselves widely to a great depth; from two to four feet is quite usual, and the plants such as Barley have been known to send their roots as far as thirty feet. No crop, except those of aquatic plants, will grow in stagnant water. Proper drainage lowers the surface of the ground water, so that the roots are able to penetrate to their normal depth, and furnishes conditions favorable to the greatest growth and largest yield of crops.

Drainage, by taking away the free water that occupies the pores of the soil, allows air to pass through the soil. The soil may be said to breathe.

Other advantages of under-draining may be mentioned, such as the longer time of growth consequent on the earlier seeding of drained land; the comparative freedom of fall wheat and clover from freezing out or winter killing; the absence of open drains, which are a source of danger to the property of the land and the harvesting of the crop; and last of all, the removal from the soil of those soluble salts formed by the decay of rock and organic matter, which cannot be used by plants and the presence of which in the soil creates the condition known as "alkali land".

Fort Saskatchewan, Aug. 20.—Shera and Company and Wilkin and Company have received several large consignments of goods which came down the river by scows last week.

A very enjoyable time was spent by a number of the bachelors at the Mansion House last Monday night. The occasion was a dinner in honor of Dr.
Donald, who left on Tuesday for a short holiday to the coast.

The carpenters have again commenced work on Sher & Company's store on Government street. Work has been suspended for some time
owing to lack of material.

We are pleased to see Mr. Hunter, proprietor of the Fort Saskatchewan Reporter, out again after his siege of illness.

Work is being rapidly pushed ahead
on the Queens hotel.

Mr. Biggs' new residence on Sandy
Hill is nearly completed.

A suitable reward will be given to anyone who returns to the post office at Fort Saskatchewan, a lady's open-face gold watch, lost on Government street or at the fair grounds on Monday evening.

and Wilson's stable on Wednesday
went off well, prices running high.

milion, spent a few days in town this week.

Mr. James Graham and son left for the Vegreville country this morning.

is spending a week at the Fort visiting friends.

look is everywhere fine. The temperature continues moderate.

Yacht Races.
The first race in the series for the America's cup took place yesterday at New York between Shamrock III and the Reliance the American defender.
There was scarcely any breeze and as the race was not finished in the time limit it was called off and will be sailed tomorrow. The Reliance was two miles ahead at the close of the drifting race. Shamrock III made a better showing than any British yacht that has yet attempted to beat the cup and in a stiff breeze is expected to easily defeat the Reliance.
